

At my place of employment (a Job Site Construction trailer) we received a computer generated message that stated that we needed to call 1 800-340-1290 it is a matter of importance. Thinking that this was some type of solicitation we ignored the request. This continue for several weeks, interrupted our work and affected our productivity. Today, I got fed up with it and returned the call. was placed on hold. Once I was able to speak to a person I found out that it was MCO Financial (1-800-340-1290). They were looking for someone that had listed this as their work phone. Is there any recourse to eliminate this type of harassment to a business interest?
